Longmont photographer Lynsey Peterson and 15 families helped to raise $1,500 for the Longmont Ending Violence Initiative on March 8 and 9.

Peterson provided 30-minute "Quick Takes!" photography sessions for local families in exchange for donations to fund domestic violence prevention, education and public awareness.

LEVI works to provide the community with domestic violence prevention/education, easy access to services and public information for family, friends and co-workers of domestic violence victims and offenders.

The money raised will provide LEVI with many resources in order to move forward on its 2008 White Ribbon Campaign, an effort of men working to end violence against women, with a focus on educating other men and boys to join in the campaign to end domestic violence.
